

Vincent CORREIA owns a PhD from the University of Bordeaux (Centre de Recherches et de Documentation Européennes et Internationales, Montesquieu-Bordeaux IV University). He works on public law and aviation law, with a focus on European Union external relations in the field of civil aviation and their interaction with international air law. In recent years, he has given lectures in European Union Law, International Public Law, French Administrative Law and Constitutional Law. He is also a guest lecturer at Leiden University in the LL.M Adv. programme "Master of Advanced Studies in Air and Space Law". He has published several articles and case commentaries on aviation law in French speaking legal journals such as the "Revue de droit des transports" or the "Cahiers de droit européen", focusing notably on aviation safety and passengers' rights within the European Union. He speaks French, English and Spanish.